One of the queerest freaks of lightning ever reported came from Three Forks, a little town a few miles west of Bozeman. Three Forks is a typical western hamlet, and boasts of one saloon, a restaurant, grocery and postoffice combined, a barber shop and cobbler's shop in one and a few dingy residences. At this time it is overcrowded with idle men waiting for a job on the railroad, which is being built. C. Callahan is the proprietor of the only saloon, and at present is visiting Helena. He is a man who would have no object in telling a falsehood. In speaking of times and business at Three Forks, Mr. Callahan said that ordinarily the little burg is as solemn as a graveyard, and throughout the year the visible signs of life are the rapid, rushing of the three rivers which flow into the Missouri. "But an earthquake struck our town last Monday night," said the gentleman, "and yet it was not an earthquake, but it might as well have been, as the uprising of the earth could not have produced more terror in the souls of those who experienced the sensation. It had been raining and between forty and fifty men congregated in my saloon. Some were lounging in the chairs, others were talking in groups, some were playing poker, and engaged in all sorts of occupations customary to men in barrooms. The men were of all nations, all ages, and there was one Mormon in the group, who is old and gray enough to have been dead and buried long ago. The night was dark and dismal and the rain poured down in torrents. Suddenly a crash came and what transpired was accomplished in a great deal less time than it takes to tell. Lightning struck the house, it knocked one corner of the brick chimney off, passed through the stove pipe tearing about eight lengths of pipe squarely in two; then it shot along the floor and the scene that followed defies description. The barkeeper, who had been resting with his arms on the bar, had been thrown on the floor with a sole of his shoe ripped off and his leg blackened; he as well as everyone present thought a shot had been fired and when he recovered from the shock said the fellow that fired that shot would have hit some other place before he could kill him. One group of four men were each minus the soles of their shoes and their legs were also blackened. An Irishman who had been prostrated rushed out the door and into the hills as soon as he recovered. Two men who were intensely interested over a poker game never paid any attention to what happened. The lightning had split one leg of one of the chairs and on his partner's chair and also a corner of the table, knocking a pile of chips down. But it was down to a call and they never so much as moved or cast a glance at their terror-stricken companions. "In leaving, the lightning splintered a board in one of the house. We were pretty badly scared, I tell you, and I never want to go through such another experience."

WANTED DAMAGES.

An Ancient Carpet Knight Sues His Former Sweetheart.

A case which promised a great deal came up in the probate court yesterday, but was thrown out on a technicality. An aged man, but who is still vigorous, brought suit against a woman to recover $500 for goods he alleged she procured from him at various times. The man took a pauper's oath and was allowed to sue as a poor man. His replication to the answer of the defendant was thrown out of court.

No facts were elicited, but it is understood that the man was formerly a tutor for the woman's hand, and while he was engaged in teaching her, leaning over the garden gate, swearing by the inconstant moon and suffering from rheumatism, he at various times gave his beloved new dresses, hats, cloaks and bits of ribbon to tie up her bonny brown hair, thinking that she who had pledged him off and solemn was true to him. He was about sixty and the lady of his love was fat, fair and forty. But she was changed as by the sickness of the soul, and when the ancient beau investigated he found there was another man in the case—and that man she married. The gentleman of the ancient regime was shocked and his pocketbook was ruined, consequently he brought suit to recover. He appeared with a big ledger and several bundles of papers, and out of the court room with them under his arm, cursing justice, law and courts and casting scornful glances at the woman who smiled as he left the room.

No eastern or western metropolis of four times the size of Helena can show a better or larger assortment of ladies' misses' and children's ready-made garments in dresses, tea gowns, cloaks, wraps, jackets and every thing that can be found in Raleigh & Clarke's cloak and suit department, where you can find anything from a tennis blazer to an imported French lace dress.

District Court.
Judge Blake disposed of the following business in the district court yesterday:
4579—In the matter of L. V. Styles, deceased; judgment for appellant.

4014—Rose E. Merrill vs. Helena and Jefferson county railroad; damages; on trial.

3844—Frederick W. Danton et al vs. Jose Alberts; leave given plaintiff to file bonds for costs.

3846—Frederick W. Danton et al vs. Wm. Rowd et al; same order.

3847—Frederick W. Danton et al vs. George B. Frode; same order.

The warm weather of the last few days has had a tendency to make us think of our summer wardrobe. Raleigh & Clarke are selling a very nice summer gauge vest for 35 cents, besides they have a large stock of balbriggans, silk pleated and all silk summer vests in ladies' misses' and children's.

HELENA VS. ASSINIBOINE.

A Clever Game at Seymour Park in Which the Visitors are Downed.

Helena Maroons, 8; Fort Assiniboine, Henry A. Greene club, 3, was the way yesterday's game resulted at Seymour Park. It was a well played game in many respects, and the 100 people who sat in the grand stand were at times very enthusiastic in their applause. The day was lovely. Fort Assiniboine met its first defeat of the season yesterday, having a record of seventeen straight victories. While there were no brilliant plays, steady work characterized both sides. In the ninth inning, Keavy, shortstop, made a remarkable stop and Fulkrod made the only two-base hit of the game. Some little kicking was indulged in on technical points raised by the soldiers as to the manner of Semper holding the ball out of sight. The umpire was very fair in his decisions, but he should take more notice of the low balls that fly over the plate.

Helena was first to bat. Tutt got safely first, stole second when Walsh went out on a fly to Keavy. Semper struck out and Morrissey hit one which was put to first before he got there, leaving Tutt on base. In Carroll and Fulkrod went out on flies and tapped the ball to Watkins, throwing Dallas out on first; Hemingway took base on balls while he remained on base going to first. Fulkrod struck out in the third, Tutt was put out at first and Walsh struck out. In the fourth Semper took base on balls, stole second, and Morrissey came in bringing Semper in for the first tally. Rogers made a sacrifice hit which helped Morrissey to third. Dallas also sacrificed and brought Morrissey in. Hemingway went out on a fly catch. Flak made a tally in the fifth, getting to first on an error and running to second on a base when Lenz hit throw to first. Tutt and Semper died on bases, Dallas going out on a foul fly. In Carroll and Fulkrod went out on flies and runs which ended their run making.

Assiniboine's story is soon told. In the first two innings they were unable to hit. Johnson to any advantage. Carroll and Pitts struck out in the third when Watkins tried to Morrisey who muffed the ball and managed to steal a base, when Lenz hit for a bag, bringing Watkins home. McDermott then struck out. In the third Carroll and Fulkrod went out on flies and Keavy struck out. The same thing happened in the fifth and not another run was made until the ninth, when by poor fielding they managed to make two. The score was as follows:

Assiniboine..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0
Two base hits—Walsh, first base on balls—Feav, Westphaling, Carroll (3), Hemingway, Carroll, McDermott (3); Flak, Tutt (2), Struck out—Semper, 13; Watkins, 1; Lenz, 10; Fulkrod, 10; Hemingway, 2. Time of game 2 hours. Umpire—John F. Hamilton. Score—W. C. Hemingway.

The same clubs will play again to-day, when the soldiers expect to have a stronger battery and Helena expects to put Haggenbiller behind the bat.

The Depot Browns and the Helena Blues had a game yesterday, which was won by the former by a score of 5 to 3. Manly's pitching and Murray Anderson's support won the game for the railroaders.

LUCKY DR. BOWERS.

A Californian Convicted Four Years Ago of Wife Murder, Granted a New Trial.

A Case in Which the Insurance Companies
Had a Very Great Interest.

Bowers Convicted on Circumstantial Evidence, Which the Court Says was Not Conclusive.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—The supreme court of California has granted a new trial to Dr. Milton Bowers, convicted of murdering his wife by giving her phosphorus. The court says no evidence was produced showing the accused procured or had phosphorus in his possession. Moreover, there was evidence that Mrs. Bowers' fatal illness was the result of injury caused by herself. The case has been the most sensational in many respects in the history of California. Bowers was arrested four years ago on the charge of murdering his wife to secure $14,000 insurance on her life. The evidence against him was circumstantial, but the jury found him guilty of murder in the first degree and he was sentenced to the state prison. Soon after Bowers was convicted Henry Benhayon, his brother-in-law, was found dead in his room in this city. An autopsy showed he died from the effects of digitalis. An account was found in the room purporting to be a confession to him that he had murdered his sister and that Bowers was innocent. Owing to the suspicious circumstances John Dimmik, a book agent, was arrested and charged with Benhayon in the interest of Bowers, as he had been a witness for the prosecution in Bowers' trial. After a long trial Dimmik was acquitted. Experts differed on the authenticity of Benhayon's confession—some held it was genuine while others claimed it was a forgery.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

A Special Meeting of the City Fathers Held for Important Business.

The city council met last night in special session, Mayor Fuller in the chair. Present, Lissner, Harrison, L'eb, Brown, Dunn, Washburn, Thiem, Richards, Spencer, Adkinson.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. Woodbridge asked and obtained permission to address the council about express and job wagons, asking that they be removed from upper Main street. The matter was referred to the committee on ordinances.

A communication from R. H. Wise, Indianapolis, asking that aid be extended for a plant for manufacturing electricity for incandescent light bulbs, was read, and upon motion of Alderman Loeb the mayor was instructed to lay the matter before the Board of Trade.

The complaint against Policeman Quent was read, upon motion of Alderman Loeb.

Alderman Spencer moved to refer to a special committee.

Alderman Loeb said it was unwise to refer to a committee; that the council should investigate and sit in judgment upon the case, and moved that the matter come up before the council next Tuesday evening. The motion prevailed.

Alderman Harrison arose to a question of privilege. He said as the office of the city clerk in the afternoon that there was a meeting to consider the question about the Dumphy, Villard and Hershfield additions. As chairman of the committee he claimed that he had made no report, and one had been made. It was ungentlemanly, to say the least.

Alderman Loeb said the meeting was called for a special purpose, and other motions should not be entertained. He would therefore move that the resolution prohibiting the Salvation Army from parading Sundays be rescinded, which was done. He then moved that the resolution be laid upon the table, which carried and council adjourned.

The Tickers Shut Off.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The resolution of the governors of the exchange shutting off the tickers, was carried into effect this morning. It almost completely checked business, the market opening quiet and steady. After the first quarter of an hour business was almost at a standstill and would have been without feature but for the strong movement in Union Pacific and Villard stocks. Little attempt was made after the first few minutes to send out prices by members of the exchange. Everything at 11 o'clock was decidedly mild.

REFINING ITS PRODUCT.

What Mr. Haggin's Recent Visit to Anaconda May Mean.

BUTTE, June 1.—[Special to the Independent.]—The past week has been a quiet one in mining circles in this camp. Mining men generally have found more food for thought in the visit of J. B. Haggin to Butte than in any other topic that has been presented during the week. Although there is no authoritative announcement of the fact, it is generally believed that the Anaconda company is considering the proposition of refining its own copper, and that Mr. Haggin's visit to Butte had some connection with the scheme. With the practically unlimited capital of the Anaconda company, and the manifest advantages to be derived from such a plan, the project certainly seems probable. In speaking of the matter last evening to your correspondent a well informed mining man of Butte said: "I do not know, of course, the exact constituents of the Anaconda product, but estimating it to be somewhat similar to that of the Boston & Montana, with which I am familiar, I take it that their export from Butte does not contain more than 65 per cent. of copper and silver. Their building of a refinery would mean that 35 per cent. of the transportation charges on their metal would be saved. With the vast output of the Anaconda you can well imagine what a saving this means. Then too, the refining would increase the value of the copper manufactured at least three-quarters of a cent per pound, bringing it to within one-quarter of a cent of the value of lake copper. The refining would be done undoubtedly by water power which would also mean a wonderful saving. Such a plan opens a wonderful future for this country. When it is put into operation it will bring the jobbers and copper manufacturers out here and the big companies will sell direct to the trade. It will do away with the enormous profits of the middle men. I look to see the Boston & Montana and the Butte & Boston as well as the Anaconda take this step in the course of a very few years."

Hogs, Dead and Alive.

KANSAS CITY, June 1.—The interstate commerce commission has concluded the hearings here on the question of the difference in rates between live hogs and the dressed product. The Chicago board of trade favored the Kansas City packers and opposed the equalization of rates. J. C. Haightly, a Chicago pork packer, admitted the existence of a pool composed of eighteen Chicago houses entered into in October, 1886, for three years. The members agreed to apportion a certain allowance of hogs to each firm to kill, all in excess of the above apportionment to be paid for at the rate of $4.62 per hog.

KEMMLER'S FATE.

Details of the Manner in Which the First Execution by Electricity
Will be Carried Out.

The Mandate of the Court to be Obedy Some Time During the Last Week in June.

Had Not the State Already Secured Its
Dynamo It Could Not Now Buy
One.

New York special: The preparations for the killing of Joseph Kemmler at Auburn during the week beginning June 24th, are progressing favorably.

The proceedings on the day of execution, so far as they are at present arranged, will be as follows: On whatever morning shall be decided upon in the week of the execution, the prisoner will be given an opportunity, if he desires, for religious consolation and farewell words. This over, just before the hour fixed upon for the execution the officers will enter his cell and the death warrant will be read.

His shoes will then be removed and a pair resembling regular army brogans will be substituted. In the sole of these there will have been inserted a metal plate, covering the whole sole and connecting with wires passing out through the heels.

While one officer is making this change of shoes, another will fasten the prisoner's hands together in front, and will place around his body, just below the armpits, a stout leather strap with a buckle fastening it in front and snap hooks projecting from each side at the back. Another officer will place upon the back of the prisoner's head a peculiar close-fitting cap, apparently of black rubber, made around a small metal piece in the center. It will look somewhat as if made by taking a rubber foot-ball and, with a metal cap at the hole for a center, cutting off the end of the ball into a sort of a hood. The cap will fit over almost the whole of the head from the base of the brain to well towards the forehead. Inside of it, in the center about the metal pieces, will be a spiral arrangement of copper wire about five inches in diameter, made to fit down over the part of the head that it will cover. The wires, just before the cap is placed on the person's head, will be covered with a sponge saturated with salt water.

While these arrangements are being made the prisoner will be sitting on a chair in his cell. This chair, not differing apparently from an ordinary one, but which is being made especially for the purpose, will be connected with wires leading to another room, and the prisoner will, without knowing it, be subjected to a current of electricity too light to be felt, but heavy enough to give an expert electrician in the other room an exact measurement, by the use of what is known as the "Wheatstone bridge," of the electrical resistance of the man.

From the cell the procession will be much as now to the execution room where the deputies and other persons permitted by law to witness the execution will be waiting. Near the center of the room, raised upon a small platform, about eight inches above the floor, will be a large reclining chair. The long, straight frame that forms the slanting back will be of hard wood pieces, three inches square, and will be long enough so that if a seven-foot man should be in the chair his head would rest upon the back. The seat and arms will be of plain wood also without any upholstery. The upper part of the back frame on each side will be fitted with a slot, in which will slide back and forth a small arrangement with a ring at the top and thumb-screw beneath. The rings are to receive the hooks in the back of the belt about the man's body, and the screws are to fasten the arrangement in place at the spot where the rings will meet the hooks, which will

A WARNING FROM BENTON.

Alleged Attempts to Secure School Lands Under Mineral Patents.

FORT BENTON, June 1.—[Special to the Independent.]—The River Press this evening editorially denounces the attempt of Great Falls parties to gain possession of school lands in township 21, north of range 3 east. Mining applications for patents for these lands have been made with the intent to secure a title to the same, and shafts have been sunk to support the claim that they are mineral in character. All lands adjoining and surrounding these school sections have been taken up as an agricultural nature, and as they lie in close proximity to the Great Falls townsite they are desirable property. The application patents are numbered 2,274 and 2,276.
